

The American Association of Retired Persons oppose publishing public notices solely online.

“Our concern is that people who are not computer literate or without internet access would not be able to access public notice information. This is particularly true of many seniors, disabled, and disadvantaged groups who still rely on newspapers for vital information and would miss public notices if not published in newspapers,” the AARP said.*

Keep public notices in newspapers.

Because you have a right to know.

HPA HAWAII PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION

KEEP THE LIGHT ON PUBLIC NOTICES

*The Hawaii Reporter 2/3/12

